JUNGLE DIARY

War Correspondent Keeps Notes On His Exhausting Effort To Reach Safety But Delirium Cuts Story Short.

(Copyright, 1942, By The Associated Press)

MELBOURNE, Australia—The story of what happened to Vern Haugland, Associated Press war correspondent, during the first 32 days of the six weeks he was missing in the wilds of New Guinea was disclosed today in the diary which he kept while he was able to write.

The pencilled entries—the first entry is Aug. 8, the last Sept. 9—constitute a moving human document of a struggle for survival in primeval, trackless jungles by an American who was dropped from the skies into probably the world's wildest country without food and without any previous jungle experience.

Haugland knew little about where he was. He knew only that he was somewhere on one of the largest islands in the world.

His diary covers a period of 32 days, possibly more, for at one point he noted that in his fevered delirium he might have telescoped several days.

The diary ends abrupily Sept. 9. The last entry tells of finding a path and the first signs of human habitation.

How Haugland fared in subsequent days and how he came to be in a native village where missionaries found him Sept. 19 is not known and may never be known for he was delirious when found. He now is recovering in a Port Moresby hospital.

The route of Haugland's wanderings cannot be plotted from his diary because the reporter did not know himself.

For reasons of military security, the point on the New Guinea coast where Haugland was taken by missionaries and native bearers, from which he was flown to Port Moresby, cannot be disclosed.

Haugland landed by parachute somewhere in the higher ranges of the Owen Stanley mountains and by a tortuous route made his way toward a coastal valley.

Lieut. James A. Michael of Temple, Okla., co-pilot of the bomber in which Haugland was riding when it ran out of fuel after riding out a heavy storm en route from Australia to New Guinea Aug. 7, still is listed as missing. Haugland, who bailed out just ahead of Michael, met the co-pilot on the second day of his wanderings, but the two became separated Aug. 16.

Haugland's diary follows just as he wrote it and just as it was received and deciphered in the Australian bureau of the Associated Press except for the omission of purely personal entries and of passages which were undecipherable.

AUGUST 7—Bailed out about 6:30 at about 13,000 (feet). Night in chute in rain. Uninjured.

AUGUST 8—Heard plane at seven. (Two words illegible) eight forty after filling preserver with water. . . .

AUGUST 9—Hiking.

AUGUST 10—Mike and I hiked all day.

AUGUST 11—Co-Pilot Michael and I may get separated. I have a life preserver: He hasn't. If you find me and not him, send help quickly as he is starving. With food he can make it. . . .

AUGUST 12—Through God's grace Mike and I are still together. Forded river near fork. Spent last night in chute. Mike caught up. . . . Spent night on hillside, rain starting at four, under small rock. Third night under brush shelter. Fourth day little progress until took to river. Fifth day at fork forded another river, waded down another. Spent night on broad clay shelf over river. Rained early. Saw wallaby.

AUGUST 13—Still no food, no sign of people. Over Mt. Down river. At 3 p. m. drenched by heavy rain, spent night in small cave with rocks falling.

AUGUST 14—Not much progress. Most horrible rainy night yet. We got pile of wet reeds—slept under them in soaking clothes.

AUGUST 15—Over more mountains. Heard plane but too much clouds. Slept under big log—kept pretty dry.

AUGUST 16—Both very weak—feet bad.

LATER—AUGUST 16—Must take to river. We may get separated or drowned but pray to God for safety.

(Entry in different handwriting, presumably Michael's: "In case we are separated I'll be up the river in bad need of food. Please rush to rescue. Lt. James A. Michael.")

* * * * *

Mike, Haugland Separate.

LATER AUGUST 16—Mike went up over the hill. I started down the river, saw I couldn't make it and came back to dry my clothes. Will try and follow him tomorrow. Made bed between rock and log. Hope no rain. Maybe Mike can go faster alone. I hope so. He's a wonderful boy and deserves to live.

AUGUST 17—Fairly good night. Can see now must take to river. Dear God, help me make it. Plane came over early, but too far away—didn't see me. Very weak.

EVENING—Got into river—saw couldn't make it. Awful climb up mountain. There I saw it straight down. Absolutely no hope.

Climbing further—terrible mountains ahead. River also impassable—winds endlessly. View on top convinced me only a miracle of God can help now. All I can do is lie and wait, wish for a miracle or death. Made it back to camp—about ready to go to sleep.

AUGUST 18—Hope Co-Pilot James Aubrey Michael of Temple, Okla., who caught up with me S-S is OK. He should be six or eight miles ahead of me down river by now. Amazing thing is how clear-headed we have remained.

AUGUST 19—Second day lying on rocks, chewing grass and reeds, praying a great deal. Getting so weak. Hardly any hope now. Lost life preserver. Watched vainly all day for a plane. Only hope is a plane dropping food or ground aid arriving—both extremely unlikely. Looks like I shall die here soon.

AUGUST 20—Worst rainy night since Mike and I spent two terrible ones. I was just lying in the mud, soaked and stinking, all night. Somehow stronger today. Foot healing, too. If could get real food think could hike around mt. Seems too bad to die when maybe could struggle to a village. If only the mts. didn't stretch on, snarper and sharper. If only knew shortest way to go to sea.

AUGUST 21—Last night rainiest of all. Raining today, too. Life vest washed away.

AUGUST 22—Worst rainy night yet—didn't think I could stand that torture. Rain today—dread tonight.

AUGUST 23—Surprisingly didn't rain. Moon came out . . . about flooded out of bed by rise. Spent rest of night under tree. Hate leave river but think I'll bandage feet and go around mt. Ate lots more reeds.

AUGUST 24—Had warm, dry night. Two and one-half weeks with nothing to eat—my body looks terrible. If someone comes today I can still live—but I need food. Head clear . . . position good otherwise.

AUGUST 25—Worst night of all. Heavy rain. River came up, flooded me out of one bed, then another. Had to climb into rocks and sit shivering there. Yet somehow today, the almost sleepless, I have more strength to walk around on than for several days. All search for me, if any, must have been given up, so my plight is about hopeless.

AUGUST 26—Rained early last night, drenching me. Found dirty hole for head under rotten log—rest exposed. Awful night. . . . Awoke a bit delirious for first time. Looks equally bad tonight—I'm still wet from last night.

AUGUST 27—Got wettest yet. Wet all day today. Very weak—looks near the end. Clothes won't dry out.

* * * * *

Wrong Date?

AUGUST 28—This may be wrong date. Either last night was very long and full of bad dreams or I have been semi-delirious . . . two or three days. . . . only one night, tho, because it must have been fairly dry and my clothes are only damp. If can summon strength, may hike through woods in hope of finding a shelter hut. Also berries or food. Found some delicious berries on shore.

AUGUST 29—Got back to big log Mike and I slept under Aug. 25. Kept me quite dry in spite of heavy rain.

LATER—Climbed all day—Nearly on top and looks impossible get clear over. Exhausted.

EVENING AUGUST 29—On top, amazingly, awe-inspiring view,

'FARM BLOC' PREPARES FOR FINAL STAND

'We Can Talk Indefinitely,' Warns Senator Thomas as Compromise Loses.

'DEADLINE' THURSDAY

Administration Leaders Press For Vote on Measure To Meet Oct. 1 Date.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky told the senate today the country is "impatient for action" on the farm price controversy and served notice that there would be no adjournment tonight until the anti-inflation bill is passed.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) hinting that the farm bloc may make a last-ditch stand to write protection for farm prices into the pending anti-inflation legislation, today indirectly threatened to delay senate action beyond President Roosevelt's Oct. 1 deadline.

"The farm bloc can, if necessary, talk indefinitely until the people of the country have an opportunity to let us know their sentiment," Thomas, leader of the farm bloc, said.

That threat followed the farm bloc's failure to win administration approval of a new farm amendment that would have directed the president to include all costs-of-production in fixing ceiling prices on farm commodities. It also came as administration leaders pressed for a final senate vote on the pending bill which would give President Roosevelt

Mercury Dives to New Low; Frost Blankets Area.

With the mercury at 27 degrees this morning, a new season's low, another heavy frost blanketed the Mansfield area and ice formed on standing water in the outdoors. It was the fourth heavy frost in the past week, putting an end to growing plants.

The weatherman had good news today, however, promising rising temperatures this afternoon and tonight. The mercury had climbed slowly to 49 degrees at noon.

The reading this morning, five degrees below freezing, was believed the lowest recorded here in September in several years.

Highest temperature yesterday was 55 degrees and the average for the past 24 hours was 41, more than 14 degrees below normal.

City's 6,000 School Pupils Join Scrap Salvage Campaign

Mansfield's 6,000 school children were asked today to join in the campaign to collect scrap for the war program by locating old metal, rubber, rags, and paper at their homes or elsewhere and reporting it to the principal of their school.

Supt. W. L. Miller of the city's schools said he was awaiting final instructions from the state department of education for pushing the scrap campaign in the schools but he had requested pupils to begin looking for scrap and reporting it now.

Trucks operated under the direction of the county salvage committee will collect the waste materials at homes or wherever the boys and girls find it.

Meanwhile, Carl L. Stough, county salvage chairman, said today that several filling stations in the city have collected big piles of scrap which will be picked up by trucks and taken to the collection center near the city sewage disposal plant.

Stough urged persons in the Mansfield area who have old metal or rubber to contribute to call the county civilian defense headquarters, phone 3763-6, reporting where it may be found easily by truck drivers.

Trucks are collecting this week in Springfield, Franklin, and Sandusky townships, making house-to-house calls, the salvage chairman said. He suggested that housewives require the drivers to show their credentials as scrap collectors before permitting them to enter the house or farm buildings.

Scrap donated in the city and county in recent weeks has been sold for more than $400 which was turned over to the Richland Civic Victory committee for the benefit of servicemen, Stough added.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Venerable Senator George W. Norris (I.) Neb., today declared that he has decided to seek re-election because of a belief that his forty years' experience in congress may aid in conducting the war and in drafting the peace to follow.

Norris yesterday notified the secretary of state at Lincoln, Neb., that he would be a candidate for re-election. In a statement addressed "to the people of the state of Nebraska" today, he said:

"I cannot help but feel that I would be almost cowardly if I did not give heed to the fellow citizens who are praying that I again enter the race."

1,400 More Americans Held In France By Nazis, Report

(By United Press)

VICHY—The United States embassy learned through official channels today that 1,400 additional Americans—1,000 men and 400 women—have been interned by German authorities in occupied France.

The new arrests brought to 1,780 the total of Americans now in German hands.

The round-up began last Thursday when most of the internees were arrested, it was understood, but there have been scattered arrests every day since.

The women have been taken to the restaurant building in the Zoo of the Jardin D'Aclimation in Paris while the men are interned in the suburb of Saint Denis, where Jacques Doriot formerly was mayor.

It was believed the women soon would be transferred to the watering resort of Vittel, in Vosges department of northeastern France, where they would be interned in a hotel like British women who have been there for almost two years. The men are expected to be sent to Compeigne where 280 have been interned as hostages since last December.

Reports reaching the embassy said no Americans under 16 or past 65 were arrested. American physicians, it was understood, were permitted to continue their services at the American hospital at Neuilly outside Paris.

MANSFIELDER WALKS INTO TRAIN, KILLED

Jacob Brandt, 60, Dies Under Wheels of B. & O. Cars at Mulberry Crossing.

THREE WITNESS DEATH

Motorists Assert Victim Apparently Failed to See Moving Train.

Apparently failing to see a train moving over the Mulberry street crossing of the Erie railroad at 9:30 a. m. today, Jacob Brandt, about 60 years old, walked between two cars and was ground to death under the wheels. His mangled body was strewn 100 feet along the tracks before the train was brought to a stop.

Ira Metcalf and Ray Springle, motorists who were waiting for the train to clear the crossing, told Dr. Lewis B. McCullough, coroner, that Brandt had ample time to note the approach and passage of the train but appeared heedless of its presence. Coroner McCullough held death was due to accidental causes.

Signal flasher lights were operating and witnesses could offer no reason for anyone failing to note the train's presence.

Brandt, a carpenter by trade, roomed nearby on Lafayette avenue. The body was removed to the Geiger funeral home and an effort is being made to contact relatives. It is understood there are two sons.

P. V. Savage was engineer and C. L. Doyle conductor of the westbound train of empty tank cars. J. H. Hall, head trainmen, witnessed Brandt's heedless approach and signaled the engine crew to stop the train.

Westbound traffic was delayed more than 30 minutes by the tragedy. Trainmen experienced difficulty in keeping a rapidly-gathered crowd off eastbound tracks as scores crowded onto the right-of-way.

Residents of the neighborhood said Brandt had not been working for some time although for a number of years he had been a wood checker in the Tinkey Lumber company plant, North Main street.

The Auto club office will remain open today and Wednesday until 7:30 p. m. to accommodate Fires Leaders At Stalingrad And Leningrad

Allies Launching Offensive In New Guinea, Solomons.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A determined Allied offensive appeared definitely under way in the far-flung Pacific war theater today causing the Japanese invaders to fall back in New Guinea and inflicting heavy losses on enemy planes and troops in the Solomon and Aleutian islands.

The unleashing of Allied air and ground power on two of the three strategic Pacific fronts coincided with announcement of a conference of the U. S. navy and airforce's high command somewhere at sea. The attacks brought destruction of 49 Japanese planes in the Solomons and Aleutians and damage to five ships in four days of raids.

Taking the offensive for the first time on New Guinea, General MacArthur's ground forces hammered back Japanese troops in the Owen Stanley mountains with an infiltrating and outflanking attack about 32 miles north of the important Allied base at Port Moresby.

MacArthur's Australian headquarters announced last night, the attacking forces were "making progress" for the first time since the invaders landed at Gona mission July 21.

Meanwhile, Allied air forces continued savage pounding of the Japanese bases and supply lines in New Guinea. These persistent attacks, an army spokesman observed, may have stopped the in-

Reds Continue To Hammer Flanks, Lose Ground In City.

(By Associated Press)

Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies were reported to have widened their counter assault in the 36-day-old siege of Stalingrad today, hammering the German north flank on a 40-mile front between the Don and Volga rivers, while Nazi tanks pressed a new threat within the embattled metropolis.

With winter fast approaching and the great German summer offensive apparently stalled on all fronts, London heard that Adolf Hitler had launched a new purge of top-ranking Nazi generals, ousting Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock from the Stalingrad command and replacing Field Marshal Wilhelm Ritter Von Leeb at Leningrad.

The Nazi-inspired Vichy radio said Field Marshal Siegmund List, who directed the 1941 Balkan campaign, had replaced Von Bock. Previously, Von Bock was reported to have quarreled with Hitler over the fuehrer's insistence on a costly siege of Stalingrad and synchronized drive into the Caucasus.

London military quarters said Field Marshal George Von Kuschler had replaced Von Leeb on the Leningrad front, where the German armies have been slowly driven back in a series of Soviet counterattacks.

London informants said List, a ruthless tactician and leading exponent of lightning war, was expected to open a savage new as-

DISAPPROVES: Churchill Asks No Talk On Second Front

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Churchill voiced emphatic disapproval of speculation on the time or place of a second front, as the subject cropped up in the house of commons today and as the BBC broadcast to France that an Allied offensive "is in the making."

Churchill's remarks were provoked by a question from Capt. Peter MacDonald which was prefaced by the assumption that "the period of offensive operations by the United Nations is now approaching."

As parliament met for the first time since Sept. 11, a high officer of the British army broadcast in French that "today more than ever before the possibilities of a British and Allied landing on French soil must be foreseen."

The message followed the pattern of previous BBC broadcasts to France. It told the French that there would be no advance warning of the day or point of attack but that "the offensive of the Allied nations is in the making."

MacDonald was anxious lest someone with inside information indiscreetly tip off the enemy with too free talk. In response to the member's request for a word of caution, Churchill said:

"I welcome this opportunity of again emphasizing the undesirability of public statements or speculation as to the time and place of future Allied offensive operations even though such statements are based on inference and not, as the suggestion seems to imply, on inside information."

The house's applause was punctuated by the remark—which

UNTRUE: London Reports No Sinkings Of Troop Transports

(By International News Service)

LONDON—The British ministry of information today gave the lie to a German claim that U-boats had sunk three Allied troop transports carrying American troops across the Atlantic.

"It may now be stated," the ministry of information announcement said, "that an enemy claim to have sunk troop transports in the Atlantic is quite untrue."

The German radio today, in a sequel to yesterday's yarn about inflicting huge destruction on the Allied convoy, claimed that prisoners were taken aboard the attacking U-boats.

The broadcast, recorded by the Daily Mail, said "We hope to get from these prisoners information on losses of men and material resulting from the U-boat attack."

It was claimed in a special announcement from Hitler's headquarters that three large transports carrying American troops to Britain were sent to the bottom, but there has been absolutely no confirmation of this report from a reliable source.

"The convoy," the Germans said today, "must have been of a special character in view of the size of the ships used.

"It is believed to be the first time American troops have come to Europe in such a convoy. American contingents already in the British Isles have crossed the Atlantic in ships sailing alone."

The latter Nazi statement was viewed as an effort to minimize the size of the American forces already in Britain, and the Daily Mail described the broadcast as "clearly of the fishing for information variety."

Girl Offers Thanks for New Success

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Here's the story of a girl with plenty of courage. Declining to consider a broken engagement as a life-wrecking calamity, she picked up the pieces and kept right on.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Two years ago I was one of those girls who wrote to you from Heartbreak House. Instead of sympathizing with me, your personal answer to my letter was a much-needed dash of cold water on my head.

"I'm not going into that old affair here, but I had been treated abominably, rejected with cold deliberation. You told me to burn, give away or send to the second-hand store the dress I expected to be married in, not to leave it around or try to wear it, for it would be full of bitter reminder.

"You told me to get new and attractive clothes, to take lessons in ballroom dancing at the best school my pocketbook could afford. Also, not to give up my job as secretary-stenographer but to stick it out even if everyone in the organization knew I'd been jilted.

"But let me say that if everyone knew, they were all lovely to me. Young men who hadn't shown a bit of interest in me before invited me to dine, took me to the movies. No, they didn't make love. They just wanted to show they thought me a good sport; two became good pals. The girls in my division were simply grand. They invited me to their homes, got up week-end trips, and one of them actually taught me to drive her car.

"I went in for every form of outdoor life I could possibly manage and I had grown so proficient in my dancing that I offered myself as an instructor at one of the nearby camps.

"And here, dear lady, is where I met my fate. The officers had Saturday night dances, and he, saying his dancing was rusty, asked for a lesson. He's a first lieutenant in the army, and I can't begin to tell you what a splendid fellow he is. That crawling worm over whom I broke my heart only two years ago seems funny-paper stuff to me now.

"To make a long story short, we're going to be married in six weeks' time so that we can have a little honeymoon if he goes overseas.

"I hope you'll print this letter, so that any girl who's had my experience will not go around moping and mooning, but will pick up the pieces of her life, fill it with interesting things and go on. And I thank you heartily, Miss Fairfax, for not sympathizing with me when I wrote you from Heartbreak House.

Can You Help Canners Who Need Sugar?

By BETSY NEWMAN

Here's a thought for those of us who don't do much canning and baking, and who also don't use a great deal of sugar in other ways. Send what we don't need to our friends and relatives who need more than we do. Women living in the country, whose men folk work out-of-doors, and who have large families of children, need more sugar than most of us. They can more fruits and vegetables and also use more at the table. If you're one of those women who says she "has more sugar than she ever had before," in spite of the rationing, think of some one you know who could use some of it and send it along.

Today's Menu.

Stuffed Veal and Rice
Baked Corn with Peppers
Carrot, Celery and Cabbage Salad
Spanish Cream
Coffee or Tea

Stuffed Veal and Rice.

1 veal breast or shoulder
1 lb. pork shoulder, ground
1 tsp. salt, pepper
3 cups rice
Sage
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 onions

Bone the veal shoulder and stuff the cavity with dressing made of ½ cup well-mashed, cooked rice, ground pork, 1 chapped onion, salt, pepper and sage—about ½ teaspoon of latter. Boil the bones and the other onion, shredded, for stock. Sew meat with coarse thread, and then rub surface of veal with salt, spread with butter and place meat in roasting pan. Add 2 cups of stock, and bake in moderate oven for 2 hours at 350 degrees F. Remove meat to platter, thicken gravy with a little browned flour. Serve meat with hot cooked rice, pouring gravy over rice, or serve gravy on side, as preferred. This amount serves eight.

Corn in Pepper Cases.

2 cups corn
2 green peppers
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
1 cup cream or rich milk
1 tablespoon melted butter

Drop peppers into boiling water for 5 minutes, remove, then cut open, remove stem and seeds, and chop fine. Put corn and peppers in layers in buttered baking dish and season with salt. Pour cream and beaten egg, blended with melted butter, over all, and bake in oven 40 minutes. Serves 6.

Spanish Cream.

3 cups milk
1 tbsp. unflavored gelatin
3 eggs
½ cup sugar, scant
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Soak gelatin in milk for 5 minutes, place over hot water, and when gelatin is dissolved, add sugar. Pour slowly on slightly beaten egg yolks, return to double boiler and cook until somewhat thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from stove and add salt and flavoring, then egg whites beaten stiff. Turn into one large or 8 individual molds which have been dipped in cold water, and put to chill. The mixture will separate and form a jelly on the bottom with custard on top. Unmold and serve with cream, whipped or plain, or sliced fruit or fruit juice.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Carolyn's first answer to my question was a malevolent glare, then she sent a wary glance to Miss Whitlock's face. What she saw in the nurse's eye evidently impelled her to sullen utterance.

"I'll listen to Ron quietly," she said, adding bitterly, "What else can a prisoner do, in the hands of the Gestago?"

I ignored her comment, but hastily turned my back to hide a smile.

I spoke quickly to Ronald as soon as I had opened the door enough for his voice to be heard inside.

"All right, Ronald," I said encouragingly, "Carolyn is listening."

I hardly knew Ronald's voice when he began speaking to Carolyn. From some hidden depth he had pumped up courage to give his sister the stern mandate she so sorely needed, and his tones were resonant and militant as he told her what I had just outlined to him.

"There's no use crying or getting hysterical, Carol," he told her. "I can't help you in anything, and I don't want to help you, as long as you're making so much trouble. But, is you'll go quietly with Aunt Madge to Mr. Spencer, and really try to help them find out the reason for Marion's disappearance, instead of staging a rotten performance like the one you've just given, you'll find that I'm your old brother Ron again, ready to do anything in the world for you."

His voice softened on the last words, but there was sternness in his tones again as he went on.

"But don't get me wrong," he said. "Until you behave yourself I don't want ot see you or hear anything from you. When Aunt Madge tells me you're playing the game with us, then I'll see you, but not until then. Good-bye."

He turned on his heel and walked down the corridor.

Carolyn's face had slowly whitened at his words, but now suddenly flamed crimson as her eyes were turned venemously on me.

"Well, you've done it!" she said. "You've poisoned even my brother against me. So let's get on with the farce. I'll obey and go quietly. There's nothing else for me to do.

"Which particular torture may I expect when your father gets hold of me—beating, or pulling out fingernails?"

"I don't think he's decided that question yet," I said lightly. "And now, Miss Whitlock, I must leave you for a bit, but I'll come back with my husband ten minutes before we're ready to leave."

"I suppose it isn't permitted to ask where you're taking me?" Carolyn flashed, and despite my loathing for the role she was playing I paid mental tribute to her courage.

"I don't know myself," I retorted as I left the room.

Ronald was at the end of the hall looking out of the window, and the dejected droop of his shoulders pulled at my sympathies.

"Please believe that I know what you are going through, dear boy," I said. "I hope we can make Carolyn understand that her salvation and Marion's lies in her revealing the secret she is keeping so faithfully.

"I hope so, too," he said fervently, but with evident despondency. "And now, what is it you want me to do to help you?"

PASSING DREAM

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

CHAPTER VII

They were dancing in the ballroom of the Shoreham, Temple wearing a white dinner dress of classic simplicity with Jud's orchids tremulous on her shoulder. And while her eyes were excited at the color and movement and music, their deeper warmth was reserved for him. She was thinking that this was the third time she had seen him in the month they had known each other and that the sound of his voice after an interminable silence of two weeks had been, for the first time since she had come to Washington, more welcome than a letter from home.

She had had good cause to remember Paula's calling him a young man of good taste. For obviously he found cheap entertainment distasteful since, each time she had been with him, they had dined with an extravagance which took her back to her few visits with Ron and Fran.

Jud drove what had once been an expensive roadster and still bore itself with some dignity when it was not, seemingly, about to give up the ghost. She wondered why he had not made some humorous remark about his car rather than swearing at it under his breath.

When they returned to their table, he said, "I wasn't going to see you again, Temple." He spoke with good humor, almost teasingly.

"Then why did you?" She almost said, "I didn't think you were either."

"Don't you know?"

"No, I don't."

"I wasn't going to see you again because you're disturbing and I did see you again because you're disturbing."

Leaning forward, he covered her hand with his. It was a long-fingered, sensitive hand over another of its kind. "Oh, hell, darling, why can't we be two nice young people out to have a good time until my time comes? You are the darndest girl . . . I'm not particularly happy with you and I'm not particularly happy without you. You're . . . You're not the kind of a girl I wanted to be in love with when I fell in love again."

Temple felt as though he had struck her before all these people and that they had turned to see her humiliation. No one had ever been harsh with her or verbally hurtful. For a blinding second she saw herself leaving him, hurrying to the dressing room to get her wrap and going home in high indignation. But after a second the blindness was gone and her vision returned and she was seeing his fine face, the thick black hair with the unruly curl in it and the crooked mouth that was so charming.

"What—what sort of girl did you want to be in love with?"

He said quickly, "The boss' daughter, of course. Since I can't be the boss' son, I'd like to marry the boss' daughter, my boss' daughter, yours, anybody's."

He drew his hand away from hers and sat up straight. Then he said gently, "Temple, my father put a bullet through his very excellent brain because he was worth more dead than alive. All through the thirties he worked 16 hours a day to resurrect a business that had died in 1929. His insurance was worth more than he because it would see his only son through college and give his wife a genteel widowhood."

Judson shrugged. His face was blank. "That's all. But, you see, I come naturally by a champagne taste with a beer income and liking my summers in Maine and my winters in the south. Some people would say I was no good, but they will have to admit that people who had lived on the mountains get sick when they try to live in the valley. I was raised to be something I can't be now. Who's to blame?" He looked at her tenderly, ardently. "But when I look at you, you look so beautiful and sweet and alive that my mercenary ideas trip away one by one."

Temple felt tears coming into her eyes. It would be dreadful if she cried. No one who knew her would believe that she would cry because a boy's face and a boy's voice had stirred her so deeply. Weep for pity and weep for love that you know nothing about except that it warms you and colors your alien world? You call it love for want of a better name though there are hundreds of true names for it.

"So now I know why . . . You've explained yourself." Now she knew why he was angry at his old car and why he sent her orchids and ordered champagne. They were not especially for her, but to keep Jud from feeling sorry for himself, to fool himself into believing that he could still live on the grand scale.

She said, "I have a great deal less than I used to have, too."

"And you hate it as much as I do. You fight it every minute."

"Only my lost opportunities."

"You've sweetened me," she thought. "You've sweetened me with your frankness that hurts. But I don't get up in the morning mad at everything as I did before I knew you. You've changed everything for me, Jud."

He grinned. "I hate the Pollyanna stuff. Don't try it on me. You're sweet, Temple. You're . . . too much. There's the music again. Let's dance."

She wanted to stay there forever dancing with him, feeling the music pour over them, and his face occasionally brush hers. It was as though suddenly this was the essence of living and this was enough. For her, in love for the first time, there was no war coming momentarily closer, no barrier they could not surmount and no end to her love. This was everything and this was enough. Love wasn't a part of your life. It was all of it.

Jud said, "The heart is still in it, Temple. Tell me it is."

"Yes, it is, Jud."

When she looked up and smiled he said, "Haven't you had enough of this? If I can make my old wagon start, we'll have a look at the Potomac."

The cold was damp and penetrating. They sat, huddled in the old car watching a lighted ship move slowly down the river.

Jud said, "And almost anywhere else on earth that ship would be marked for death. I've been abroad several times. I saw Paris and London and Vienna and Budapest festivals of light and good living." Turning to her, he put his arms around her and kissed her. "You're wonderful . . . I'm crazy about you, darling. But God knows where it will take us and what it will get us and what will happen to us. Why couldn't we have been in love in normal times?"

"How long have we? How long before you go?"

"I don't know. Let's not talk about it now."

"Not now. But we'll have to talk about it."

"I was wrong. Being with you does make me happy. Funny, the way I feel now I could lick Hitler with one hand while holding you with the other."

"I don't want to get away, Jud."

"Everything looks so rosy now. Now there's no cruelty and suffering and poverty and that thing which to me is worse than real poverty; not actually being poor but scared as hell you might be. That's all gone now, as children say . . . A girl's warmth and sweetness and love. If only that were all that a man needed."

When Judson stopped the car before her house, he said, "I'll have to kiss you good-night here, darling. In the hall inside I always expect the horribly efficient hostess to poke out her head and remind me that she runs a respectable house." He kissed her again, long and tenderly.

Temple said. "I love you, Jud, and tonight I never felt more respectable in my life."

He smiled. "We're in it now. We'll stick together . . . I'll come by for you tomorrow afternoon."

She felt as though she were floating up the steps. But she was not thinking beyond the coming day. Later she wondered why she did not think of numbers being called and battle lines extending from older to newer shores.

Abby had written Paula's telephone message and slipped it under her door. It was an invitation to spend a week-end at the farm.

The following week Ron and Fran stopped in Washington on their way to Florida. Ron called Temple at her office and asked her to come to the hotel after work, adding that they would think of something to do after she arrived. Reluctantly she called Jud and told him that she could not meet him for dinner and that Ron and Fran were so unpredictable she hesitated to suggest that he join them or that later she would see him. He said cheerfully, "That's all right, darling. We'll make it tomorrow night."

Ron and Fran were not in their usual suite, but in a single room when Temple arrived. Fran, whose hair seemed to grow blonder as the years went on, was bent over an opened trunk filled to capacity with new and colorful summer dresses and shoes. Ron, his face heavier, had left a highball on the desk to open the door for his sister.

"Hi, Sis?" he said and kissed her loudly. "Come in the cubby hole and have a drink."

For only the necessary second did Fran leave her new wardrobe to brush Temple's cheek with her own.

Ron laughed as he went back to pick up his drink. "The way girls kiss . . . afraid you'll get lipstick on each other."

Temple asked, taking off her things, "Where is Ronnie?"

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Although the energies and facilities will be keyed up to high purpose and important objectives, probably of a public or community nature, yet it is probable that obstacles, congestions, even physical debilities or oppositions from elders or old institutions, may combine in rather defeatist programs. However, with care for the health, resistance to obstructions and the use of highly-stimulated energies and indomitable will power may result in forced issues that mean eventual progress and notable achievement. Persistent and daring exertion win against tenacious obstacles.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a situation or set of circumstances to challenge the initiative and concentrated high purpose and intention. Excellent oportunities for progress and productive enterprise of major scope and importance may be grasped by well-laid plans, aggressive attack and endurance.

A child born on this day may have much ingenuity, skill and enterprise suitable for important public or community work.

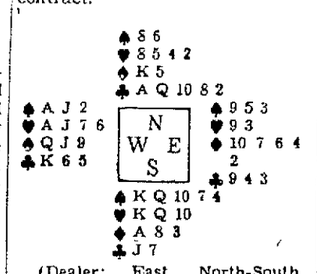
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THREE TRICKS FOR ONE

Unblocking a suit, when you are on the defensive, by deliberately throwing away your best card in it, so that you will have a smaller one left to lead to your partner, can amount to giving away one trick to get three or more. Especially in defense against a No Trump contract, this can mean the difference between beating the declarer and having him make his contract.



(Dealer: East North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Dbl	2 ♣
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	3 NT

Bidding of that general nature developed on this deal at two duplicate tables. At both of them, West felt that leads away from his other suits might jeopardize honors more, and so selected the diamond Q. One of those West players kept his mind on the secondary reason for that lead—that it might possibly be East's best suit—and the other did not.

At both tables, South took the first trick with the diamond A, in order to have the K in dummy as a possible re-entry for the clubs if East happened to hold the K of that suit. Then each South sent the club J out, to be covered by the K and A, and each then returned the spade 8 to the K, the A winning. The fourth trick was where one West slipped. He led back the diamond 9, whereas the other used the J.

When the J was led to the K, West had the 9 left so that, after South ran four clubs and led the spade 6 to the 10 and J, West was able to put East in with the diamond 9 to the 10, three tricks in that suit resulting and the returned heart to the A, setting it two.

When the diamond 9 was led to the K, the declarer then ran four clubs and lost the spade 10 to the J. West also took in the diamond J, but then was stuck with the lead. He scored his heart A for his fourth trick, but then the declarer got the last two with the spade Q and heart K, making the contract.

In order to accommodate motorists, the office of Deputy Registrar W. R. Morris will remain open until 9 p. m. through Sept. 30 for the sale of drivers licenses.

Only about 50 per cent of the persons who usually get operator's licenses have applied for them so far here, Morris pointed out, and a last minute rush is expected although a number of the motorists are serving with the armed services.

About 2,000 licenses have been sold here. Usually 4,000 are sold through the office in this community.

WILL PROVIDES FOR MONUMENT AT NOVA SCHOOL

Judge Rules $7,000 Must Be Used For Erection of Stone Monument.

ASHLAND — Common Pleas Judge H. E. Culbertson has ruled in the suit for the construction of the will of the late Urias P. Fulmer of Nova that a $7,000 bequest, made in a codical to the will, is to be used for a stone monument to be built on the Nova school grounds.

Suit for construction was filed by William M. Thudium, executor of the will. Judge Culbertson pointed out in his ruling that as the codicil stated that the "$7,000 is to be used for the erection of a monument to be erected on the public school grounds and bear the inscription "Erected by Urias P. Fulmer and Margaretha Fulmer; also that a suitable piece of artillery be placed by the side or near said mounment." The court ruled that it was the intention of Fulmer that the funds be used for a monument and that the will could not be construed to permit use of the money for a library or some other memorial. If the school board refuses to allow the monument to be erected on the school grounds, the $7,000 will go to the residuary legatee, who is C. C. Bailey of Ashland.

Judge Culbertson also ruled that the bequest of Fulmer's farm home to DeVere Thudium for his lifetime and at his death to his children meant the 48 acres on which the home is located with all buildings on the farm and that "contents" of the home included some $400 found in cans about the house.

A bank book showing a deposit of $8,000 and rubber company stock valued at over $1,000 found in the house, the court decreed, was not a part of the contents of the home.

Common pleas court has directed sale of lots 274, 268, 276, 270, 283 and 273 in the suit of Karl K. Kick, county treasurer, against Annabelle Beavers, et al. The court has found $250.56 due in taxes as a first lien on the real estate and $453.90 due Elise Wonder on a mortgage from the defendant, Annabelle Beavers.

Court Dissolves Injunction Against Land Sale.

BUCYRUS—A ruling filed in the office of the clerk of courts today from Judge Chester Pendleton of Findlay, dissolves the order temporarily restraining the city of Bucyrus from forcing the sale of an eight foot strip of land by the Zeigler Milling company. A permanent injunction was denied. Appeal bond was fixed at $200.

The injunction action was filed by the Milling company when the city sought to force the sale of the strip of land to the Swan Rubber plant for use as a drive way to provide passage to and from their plant on East Mansfield street.

Judge Pendleton occupied the bench for the hearing when Common Pleas Judge C. U. Ahl asked that he be excused from serving.

From where I sit....

by Joe Marsh

I MISSED getting my hair cut this morning on account of the scrap collection.

When I climbed into the barber chair, Ray says to me:

"Sorry, Joe. Ain't got time for you today. We're closing up this morning at ten."

And then I remembered. This was the day the town had agreed to drop everything—and I mean everything—and collect scrap for Uncle Sam.

Yes sir, the drugstore, the corner garage, Sam Abernethy's general store—every place in town except the post office—closed up tight today from 10 to 5.

And you ought to see the result piled up in front of the fire house. One hundred and fifty tons of metal that had been lying around in attics, cellars and back yards of our town since Charlie Jenkins' great-grandfather joined up with the Texas Rangers.

That's almost 200 lbs. of metal for every man, woman and child in our town. Just shows you—when American citizens go out to do a job for Uncle Sam they do it right.

Judge Cunningham and I were talking about it this evening, sitting on the front porch and having a sociable beer together.

We agreed that the way this town went all out to collect scrap was a pretty good illustration of how Democracy works. No need to crack a whip . . . no need to pass a law . . . just self-determined folks working hand in hand to get a job done for their own people.

Because from where I sit, that's what we're fighting for—the right to work together—of our own accord. To do the job because we want to, not because somebody tells us to. And when the job's done, to relax as we see fit.

And the Judge agreed. He pointed out that one of the things that helps folks get together is just what we were doin' now.

It's great, after a good day's work, to be able to have a chat and a glass of beer if you want to.

Massillon Continues to Set High School Grid Pace

Sport Podge by REX HESS

A straight line is still the shortest distance between two points, but the mathematicians didn't have football in mind when they set up this axiom.

With only 58 yards to go for a touchdown, Canton McKinley's Bulldogs battled their way for 113 yards before reaching the promised land and without losing possession of the ball.

It happened last Friday night as the Bulldogs were trouncing Akron South. The Canton Repository blamed "over-zealous officiating," resulting in numerous penalties. In all, McKinley lost 130 yards on 16 penalties, and South 45 yards on five.

Massillon's aerial game, both on offense and defense, showed a vast improvement last week in the 26-6 victory over Weirton, W. Va.

Said disappointed Weirton Coach Carl Hammill: "You have a good team. We figured you had a couple of ends who could catch the ball, and we tried to set up a defense for them, but they caught it anyway. I like to see boys fight for the ball the way they do. A couple of passes they caught in the first half really hurt us."

Springfield's Wildcats are "not up to standard" this year. That at least is what Springfield Scout Russ Paugh told the boys in Portsmouth Friday night while looking at the Portsmouth-Columbus East game.

I wouldn't put too much trust in what Scout Paugh says, in spite of the 7-0 defeat Springfield suffered at the hands of Cincinnati Western Hills in the opener.

Those Springfield lads are a cagy lot.

They work their mousetrap plays in conversation as well as on the gridiron. They will gladly lead you on, and then cut you down back of the line of scrimmage.

Posing as a scout from another school, Springfield Coach Jim McDonald quizzed me at some length in the press box at Newark last fall about the Mansfield Tygers.

I fear I didn't tell him anything that did him much good, and I know I didn't tell him anything that he didn't discover for himself as the Tygers were romping over the Newark Wildcats.

Just one week later the Tygers romped again, over the Springfield Wildcats.

After that game "Snooky" McFadden, former Mansfield and Wittenberg star, introduced me to McDonald. "Oh, yes," said big Jim, "we met last week at Newark." Fortunately there was no reason for my face to be red.

Yankees Confident Of Winning Series

ENROUTE TO ST. LOUIS—(U.P.) — The New York Yankees headed west today in quest of their seventh world championship in 11 years.

This time they face the rags-to-riches Cardinals of St. Louis. They figure the trip will turn out to be a golden one if they can win one of the two games which will open the 1942 world series at Sportsman's park Wednesday and Thursday.

The aristocrats of baseball were murder for American league teams at Yankee stadium this season and are confident they will polish off the greatest stretch team in baseball history on their own grounds.

Manager Joe McCarthy was cautious, as usual, but the Yankee players were not as conservative. They can't see the series going beyond the three games which will be played at Yankee stadium Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

As usual, McCarthy refused to reveal his pitching selection for the opening game, but indications mounted that he might not call on Charles (Red) Ruffing, the Yankee reliable rated as the best spot pitcher in the game.

McCarthy held Ruffing, Ernie (Tiny) Bonham and Spurgeon Chandler in New York when the Yankees finished their season at Boston Sunday—a pretty good sign that they are the hurlers he will start in the first three games.

* * *

There was a strong belief that the Yankee skipper might select Chandler, the only hurler to lose last year in the series against Brooklyn. Chandler, with a season's record of 16 victories against five defeats, has the equipment to handle the St. Louis batting order.

St. Louis Remains Serene

Cards Are Happy, But City Stays Undisturbed.

By GAYLE TALBOT

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—St. Louis remained extremely calm and collected about the impending world series as its Cardinals took their final workout today and the renowned Yankees closed in from the east.

Unless one read the newspapers, there was nothing to indicate that the two flag winners were due to start belting each other at Sportsman's park tomorrow afternoon. There were no banners; no hoarse talk in hotel lobbies about "our Cards."

The hotels were choked, and it took both a reservation and a willingness to argue to get any sort of a room. But they say that is a normal condition these days and in no wise related to baseball's banner attraction.

The local explanation of the seeming apathy toward the series is that the town wore itself out rooting the Cardinals home in their amazing September drive to the pennant. The fans needed a couple of days' rest before taking up the big assault on the Yankees tomorrow. All reserved seats to the first two games here were sold a week ago.

The Yanks were due to arrive shortly before dark tonight, too late for a workout.

The Cards held a long practice session yesterday, then attended a barn dance in their honor last night and were scheduled to hold another workout today. It was obvious that Manager Billy Southworth meant to keep his scrapping youngsters at [illegible] didn't want them to relax and start thinking [illegible] series.

As a matter of fact, the Cards still are in a happy daze about capturing the pennant, and the full impact of the world series probably will not strike them until about 1 p. m. tomorrow, when the Yanks start hitting practice drives into the bleachers and generally trying on Sportsman's park for size.

So far as the naked eye can discern, little if anything was taken out of Southworth's hellions by their sensational stretch drive, in which they won 43 out of 52 games. They look full of fight, and every regular will be at his appointed post when the shooting begins. Captain Terry Moore still has one leg tightly taped, and Second Baseman Jimmy Brown might be a trifle tired, but otherwise the National league champs came out of it in remarkably good shape.

Perhaps the most important development of the past 24 hours was Manager Southworth's more-or-less announced intention to start Johnny Beazley, his 23-year-old rookie pitching star, in the second game against the Yanks. At least, he said he "would like" to start Beazley in the second heat before a home crowd. This occasioned some eyebrow-lifting, as managers usually lean toward their experienced flingers in a world series and it had been assumed by everybody, including the Yankees, that lefthander Max Lanier would follow Mort Cooper to the hill for the Cards.

Cooper is, of course, a cinch to face the Yanks in the opener, and to pitch three times if the series goes seven games.

* * *

Whether Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks will start his ace, Ernie Bonham, or his 37-year-old world series specialist, Red Ruffing, in the opener might not be known until the pitchers start warming up tomorrow. Out here they feel certain it will be Bonham vs. Cooper.

CHAMPION ANGOTT WINS EVERY ROUND

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(U.P.)—Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott of Washington, Pa., won every round of a dull, 10-round non-title bout from Aldo Spoldi of New York in the feature of a program last night commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Sullivan-Corbett fight here.

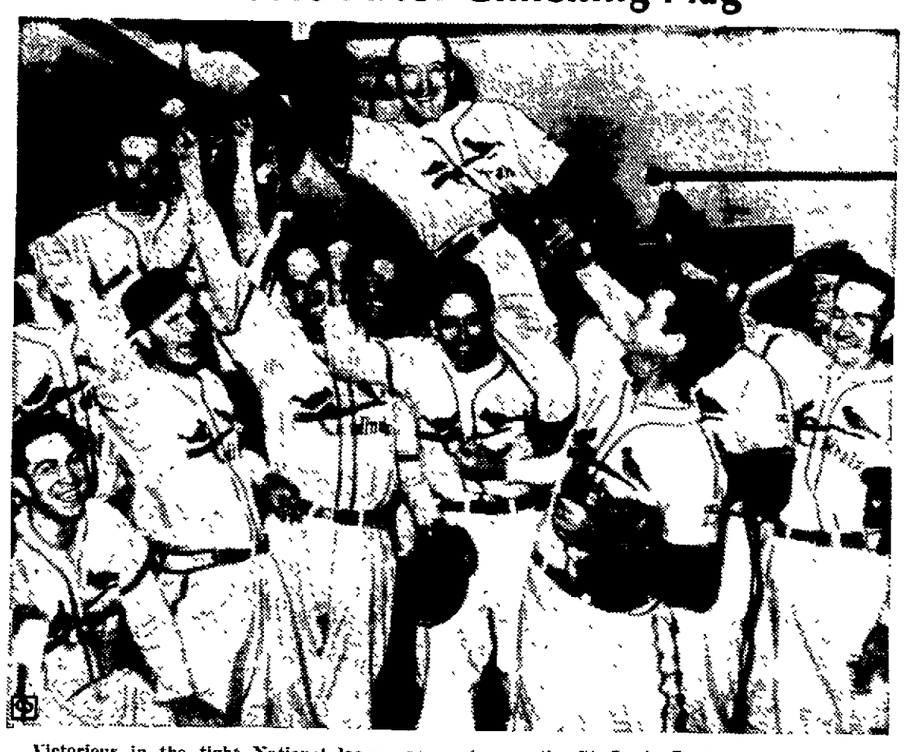
The fight was so slow and uninteresting that the referee halted it twice—in the sixth and seventh rounds—and threatened to call it no contest.

Angott weighed 139½; Spoldi, 137½.

TIED FOR LEAD

CHICAGO—(INS)—Gary Famiglietti, Chicago Bears' fullback, and Pug Manders of the Brooklyn Dodgers were tied today for the scoring lead in the national professional football league with 18 points each. Both scored three touchdowns last Sunday.

Cards Cut Loose After Clinching Flag



Victorious in the tight National league pennant race, the St. Louis Cardinals whoop it up a bit in their clubhouse. Manager Billy Southworth is held aloft by happy players and coaches. The Cards-Yankees' world series encounters were to begin Sept. 30 in the Mound City.

Brig Young Paces League

Art Hilborn turned in a 610 series and rolled the league's high game, 242. H. Doolittle had a game of 228, and Dan Nagel 222.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—Wide World—Serious Stuff: Off his National league record, Mort Cooper ought to win a couple of world series games, but don't count on it too much . . . Since the Yanks started their series winning streak in 1927, no pitcher has been able to beat them for the big money just by throwing the ball past the batters . . . They've lost four games in eight series—Two to Carl Hubbell, one to Hal Schumacher and one to Whit Wyatt . . . Looks as if Whitey Moore had grabbed the "luckiest" title from French Bordagaray. He cut in on the series swag twice with the Reds and then landed with St. Louis this year because he hollered about being sent to the minors.

PREDICTION

After giving the Cardinals the benefits of as much doubt as we can muster, this department's World Series choice is the Yanks in five games.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

He recently arrived at Indiantown Gap (Pa.) and reports that so far he hasn't been able to locate a pool table there . . . NEW YORK—(U.P.)— Alsab carries top weight of 126 pounds over a mile and five-furlongs route in the $10,000 Lawrence Realization at Belmont park today. It will be his first appearance at a New York track since he trailed Shut Out in the Belmont stakes last June.

* * *

With the three-year-old champion Shut Out having a lame leg, the 'Sab promises to be a short-priced favorite in the four-horse race, with only Vagrancy expected to extend him. The Belaire Stud filly will be in with 115. She has always indicated a fondness for a long route.

The others starting are Lochinvar, 114; Bucksin and Trierarch, 110. Trierarch is coupled in the betting with Vagrancy.

Shut Out was expected to settle the three-year-old title with Alsab in the Realization. Now Trainer John Gaver hopes to have him in shape for Saturday's Jockey club gold cup for which Alsab and Whirlaway are both eligible.

OLD TEDDY LYONS ENLISTS IN MARINES

CHICAGO—(INS)—Ted Lyons, White Sox hurler who will face Bill Lee, Cubs pitcher, in the city series opener at Wrigley field tomorrow, was a member of the U. S. marine corps today.

Lyons was sworn in by Capt. J. C Pye yesterday and put on inactive status pending future call for training.

Indiana Gives Buckeyes Test

Bo McMillin Has Real Ball Club This Year.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The Ohio State Buckeyes, a crowd of kids learning zip from the old zip-master Paul Brown, took a long pregame look at Indiana today and went to work.

The Bucks, who put on a scoring exhibition last Saturday when they whistled through the cracks in Fort Knox's line like rain through a barn door, went through long skull practices yesterday in preparation for "the best-manned Indiana team in recent years."

Workmen completed the installation of lights on the Buck practice field last night indicating long hard hours of work were ahead of Brown's boys.

OSU meets Bo McMillin's 1942 football show, starring big Billy Hillenbrand, Saturday in a Western conference opener for them both at Columbus. The Bucks swamped Fort Knox 59-0 last week while the Hoosiers were taking little Butler 53-0.

Billy and his alter ego, Jim Dewar, are a pair of lads who can do about everything in the book but catch their own passes. With their ability to run, punt, pass, block, call signals or fix windmills in a pinch, Hillenbrand and Dewar are partly responsible for McMillin's boasts.

"I wouldn't trade my first 10 backfield men for any other 10 backs I've ever seen," McMillin said.

* * *

Brown, "very pleased" that the Bucks came through last week's tiff without an injury, said that his lads would go on the field "mean and hungry" but outweighed about five pounds to the man.

Columbus Scores Third Victory

SYRACUSE —(U.P.)— The Syracuse Chiefs were expected to call on either Charley Barrett or Ewell Blackwell for mound duty tonight against the Columbus Red Birds of the American Association in the little world series.

Manager Ed Dyer of the Red Birds, now hold a 3-1 edge over the International league representative, has selected Ted Wilks.

Columbus scored its third straight victory over the Chiefs, 10-5, last night before about 5,000 fans. The Red Birds collected 13 hits off the combined offerings of Clayton Lambert and Tomas de la Cruz. Syracuse made six errors.

* * *

Ken Burkhart took over the Columbus pitching with his club trailing, 3-2, after starter Preacher Roe was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the fifth. He was credited with the victory. Roe and Burkhart allowed 10 hits. Lambert was charged with the loss.

Hillsboro Tackle Boots Blowout, Team Hopes It Has Found Punter

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Some winning streaks were extended and others were snapped, some teams played set-ups and others were upset—but the No. 1 yarn about last weekend's high school grid activity belongs to the double-troubled Indians of Hillsboro.

The Highland countians opened their season against Circleville, but the story starts early last week when the right guard suffered a fractured arm, and Coach Dow L. Nelson went to the hospital with an appendicitis attack.

With school bus transportation out for athletic teams, the Indians made the trip to "Round Town" by private car—and Supt. Paul L Upp volunteered to drive some of the players to the game. Along the route a jar was felt each time the wheels turned, and all piled out to inspect the tires.

The superintendent's rubber was growing thin in spots. In fact, in one place a tire was worn through, and the inner tube emerged to form a huge "bubble" outside the casing.

Tackle Harold Whisler thought he could get the tube back inside the casing, and gave it a kick. Result—a blowout!

* * *

The Indians finally arrived at Circleville, but a touchdown on an intercepted pass beat 'em 7-0.

Superintendent Upp, however, looked on the bright side of things.

"It looks as if we found a good punter, he declared. "If Whisler can kick a football as hard as he kicked that exposed inner tube, he'll be a great one."

Mansfield and Wyoming, two of last season's undefeated teams, also had a bit of trouble. Mansfield's winning streak ended with a 27-13 loss to Elyria, while Wyoming, which scored 173 to 0 for the foe in winning eight straight last season, bowed in the season's opener to Walnut Hills of Cincinnati, 12-0.

Some of the hot-shots, however, continued to bowl over opposition.

Massillon's terrific Tigers racked up their 45th without defeat by downing Wierton, W. Va., 26-6, Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home, the same Cadets who scored 359 to none for the opposition last year, beat Xenia Central 13-0 for their 20th straight; class B Bergholz, winner of eight last season, opened with a 26 to 7 win over Salineville; Canton Lehman defeated Akron Buchtel 19-0 to extend the winning streak of nine started a year ago; Martins Ferry, tied in a post season game by Toledo Libbey after winning 10 in a row in '41, triumphed over Bridgeport 19-7 to start another big campaign, Louisville added a 14-0 conquest of columbiana to the nine victories of last season; Toledo Libbey, tied only by Martins Ferry last season, defeated Toledo Central Catholic 19-0 for its second of the year; and Fredericktown, tied once in eight starts a year ago, beat Bellville 25-0.

Massillon, claimant of the state title the last seven years, has a tough flock of foes in its own Stark county, where four other teams are unbeaten thus far. Canton McKinley, with two wins—the latest a 51-0 smothering of Akron South—looms as the toughest, setting the stage for the season's finale between the Bulldogs and Tigers.

Dayton Oakwood, 59-0 winner over Wilmington, and victor over Greenville by 52-0, is one of the Miami valley's top-notch teams. The 111 points may be the state's two-game scoring record. Quarterback Johnny Sauer, the team's sparkplug, contributed three touchdowns to last week's win.

Until all the votes are in, Jack Bickel of Newark is the state's two-game scoring leader with 47 points. The senior halfback scored four touchdowns as the Wildcats beat Akron Garfield, the Rubber City's league champion, 45-7, and added two extra points for good measure.

Martin Gibbs, Ironton's fine colored back, has five touchdowns in two tilts for a 31-point total, and Ed Menke, stocky right half for Marietta, has 27 points for two games. John Richardson of Chillicothe returned a punt 67 yards to set up the touchdown he scored later to beat Washington C. H., 6-0, while Jack Tillett of the Court House squad uncorked a 62-yard sprint, only to be pulled down from behind on the 10.

PAM—Terrible Shock. By A. W. Brewerton

YES, HE DID DO THAT, DIDN'T HE? HANS FELL INTO BAD COMPANY EARLY IN LIFE--THE WORST MILITARY CLIQUE
HE WOULDN'T HEED OUR PARENTS; EVEN LEFT HOME WHEN THEY REMONSTRATED TOO STRONGLY--AND, WHEN THEY AND I LEFT GERMANY FOR AMERICA BECAUSE OF INTOLERABLE CONDITIONS, HE WAS BITTER TOWARD US! I HAVEN'T SEEN HIM FOR TEN YEARS--HAD NO IDEA HE WAS IN THIS COUNTRY!

STOCK LEADERS SEARCH AROUND FOR NEW TREND

Definite Road Seems Obscure, Business Loans For Past Week Show Decline.

NEW YORK — Leading stocks searched unsuccessfully for a definite trend in today's market.

Gainers of fractions included U. S. Rubber and North American. Unchanged to off a trifle were General Motors and Kennecott.

Market analysts studied the federal summary which disclosed loans to commerce, industry and agriculture by member banks in 101 cities for the week ended Sept. 23 dropped $36,000,000. In the same week, though, loans to brokers and dealers in securities expanded $71,000,000.

Notice also was taken of the treasury announcement that federal war borrowing in October would be stepped up to $4,000,000,000. Banking quarters expected that financial operations running to approximately this aggregate monthly would be the regular thing for the duration.

SECOND FRONT TALK DEPLORED

Churchill Tells Parliament No One Should Speculate on Plans of Allies.

Churchill did not answer—"will that be conveyed to Mr. Wendell Willkie?"

Willkie, speaking in Moscow Sunday, urged a second front "at the earliest possible moment which our military leaders will approve."

Churchill reported on the British occupation of Madagascar, announcing that he had been informed of the fall of Tulear, the island's last port remaining in French hands.

He was expected to make a brief statement soon bringing the house up to date on the progress of the war.

Tells France Second Front's Coming

LONDON—(INS)—A high officer in Britain's army today broadcast a new promise to the French people that Allied forces will invade the continent as reports reached London concerning Nazi fears of an early landing attempt by British and American forces on the Arctic coast.

"Today more than ever before the possibilities of a British and Allied landing on French soil must be foreseen," the officer, who must remain unnamed, declared.

"You must also reckon with the intervention of our navy in French waters and Royal Air Force attacks against military objectives."

Then the army spokesman stated:

"An offensive by the Allied Nations is in the making."

Diary Of War Correspondent's Exhausting Trek In Jungles

but raining so will try for better look in a. m. Drenched and cold—may not survive. If I do, I feel my chance of getting out alive is better since I'll get an idea of the layout. Can see the river for miles. Despite cold, feel better tonight—more confident. Whatever happens, God has been good to me.

AUGUST 30—Got dry during nite so fairly comfortable despite lack of cover. Now at Mt. top. Most vivid, terrible scene I ever witnessed. Such peaks! Only thing to do—keep away from river and keep . . ., cut to east or south much as possible. In every other direction . . . stretch farther away . . .

. . . . Thirst sent me back to river but I good way down stream. Dug through worst jungle yet, then down deep little stream, and just arrived all done in—my feet very bad too. If I don't die tonite I may push on along shore a way tomorrow—I don't know why. There is no chance for me now, in this . . . jungle—I know that.

AUGUST 31—Last night wettest of all. Very cold under only slight cover of palm. Dry but today found two pocketsful of fruit looking and tasting like sour plums. Helped a lot, but too sour to eat many at once.

SEPTEMBER 1—Crossed another creek last nite, found good palm cover from heavy rain. Now climbing Mt. Saw another emu. Two or three wallabies yesterday.

MID P. M.—Reached top, for first time see great valley—far away—and not impossible to reach. Dear God, help me keep my strength—this may be into settled area. Reached bottom before rain started.

SEPTEMBER 2—Under log awhile, then under palm. Wettest yet. Almost longest hike yesterday and today. Another emu, three wallabies together, two others. Now going down into valley—hope opens through. River makes incredible cut further over, but may avoid it.

SEPTEMBER 3— . . . Reached river bottom below extreme peaks, bathed, washed out bandages, dried feet. One toe very badly swollen. Example of how Lord shepherded me—led me to rock crevice right by river where avoided heavy storm, then brot out sun, made good bed but lost in dark. Sat . . . rain. Steady hike up creek today. Late start.

SEPTEMBER 4—After tough day, worst wettest coldest nite. Hand so numb cant write. Terrible struggle thru jungle today.

* * * * *

Sees Air Battle.

SUNDOWN—Climbed, most wonderful views yet. Sharp air battle. (No elaboration of this statement.)

SEPTEMBER 5—No rain, best nite. On hill in tall grass. Tough up and down day but turning mo-t time S and W (presumably south and west) after all these days mostly of . . . and W, even E. Heavy rain but stayed dry in hollow tree first time in New Guinea. Heard plane.

SEPTEMBER 6—Reached river's end valley . . . now surrounded by rivers which cant ford. Guess have to go back . . . cne on right. Only chance now native come, I guess. Almost nothing edible several days—very weak.

LATER—Answer to prayers—dozens and dozens of bramble berries. Sleep under great log—perfectly dry—good sleep. Mosquitos not bad.

* * * * *

Berries for Breakfast.

SEPTEMBER 7—Berry breakfast—forded river—berries galore . . . mosquitos unbearable. Little native twig shelter. Unable ford another river, slept most day long and spent most day eating and reading. Slept under twig shelter (native). This island no mosquitos, few flies. Big relief. Was nice day, beautiful nite. Gorgeous sunset.

SEPTEMBER 8—Rained lightly during nite. Today tried ford river, couldn't. Upstream it (word undecipherable). Many good berries still. Three ft. away. Crossed big river on log jam, got almost across another on log meaning five foot jump, waded instead. Crossed another on log, wandered hr. or two lost, back to river, found three native huts one with floor . . . surrounded by stinking weeds. Sick in nite, first time, probably from stingers on hand and mouth. Large leaves look like milkweed, probably planted keep animals from huts. Heavy rain, but floor and roof kept quite dry.

SEPTEMBER 9—Spent rainy a. m. in hut drying shoes. Where from here? Impossible stick close to river because impassable tall reeds. Will stay as can otherwise get lost cause can't see where going.

P. M.—Thank God I keeping near reeds, got on to faint animal track. Crossed stream on log at berry place, trail grew plainer, definitely track through forest. Made more distance so far than for weeks . . . sun still high. All creeks logged over, no vines, all cleared.

That was Haugland's last entry, dated 11 days before missionaries found him delirious in a native village.

The missionaries tried to feed him, gave him what medical aid they could, then engaged native bearers and accompanied them on a five-day trek through the jungle, taking Haugland to a coastal point.

He was in serious condition when he reached a port where an Australian army unit was stationed.

Brig. Gen. Hugh J. Casey, MacArthur's chief of engineers, was visiting the post at the time. He helped care for the reporter and sent urgent messages which brought a small Australian rescue plane to the post.

While they waited for the plane, Casey said Haugland talked about God and his mother, interspersed with periods of incoherent rambling in which he apparently thought himself still falling in his parachute.

In an effort to soothe him Casey joined him at times when Haugland broke out in incoherent song.

"I don't know what I sang," said Casey, "but it seemed to help."

Haugland, strapped in the open cockpit of the small plane, was taken from the outpost to Port Moresby and the American advance base hospital.

OUSTS GENERALS AS DRIVES ON RUSSIANS STALL

Hitler Replaces Two Officers; Germans Gain in City, Reds Press Flanks.

sault on Stalingrad with total disregard for losses.

Hitler's high command again spoke of "embittered fighting" in the Volga steel city and declared that "the Soviets vainly continued their relief attacks from the north."

A Berlin broadcast asserted German troops had occupied more ground in Stalingrad's northern district, moving up under a curtain of incessant bombing attacks.

German military quarters admitted that the Russians were counter-attacking furiously, but said they were "frustrated."

At noon, a bulleting from Red army headquarters said Russian shock troops attacking in the northwest zone "broke into the enemy defenses and captured several heights."

More than three companies of German infantry were reported wiped out in attacking the inter-river salient, where the Nazis previously announced they had erected a "barrier" to guard their main siege armies.

It was Stalingrad's 36th day of siege.

Rzhev sector fortifications which the Germans were 11 months building have been broken to a considerable depth in a two-day-old Red army drive taking up where the recent central front offensive left off, the Russians said.

Soviet information bureau communiques announced the capture of a strategically important height—subsequently held against five counterattacks—25 villages, munitions and prisoners in the upper Volga basin northwest of Rzhev, itself 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

About 2,500 Germans were declared slain in this theater.

The Russians were pressing the issue in two other areas as well, hitting back with ground-gaining vigor in the Sinyavino sector and the western Caucasus. Sharp battles persisted in the Vorenezh area, on the upper Don, midway between Moscow and Stalingrad.

The battle for the height above Rzhev, already squeezed by a Russian pincer, cost the Germans 18 tanks and eight guns, the information bureau said.

Heavy fighting was noted in the confused struggle for Stalingrad, where regiments locked in death grips for the possession of single streets.

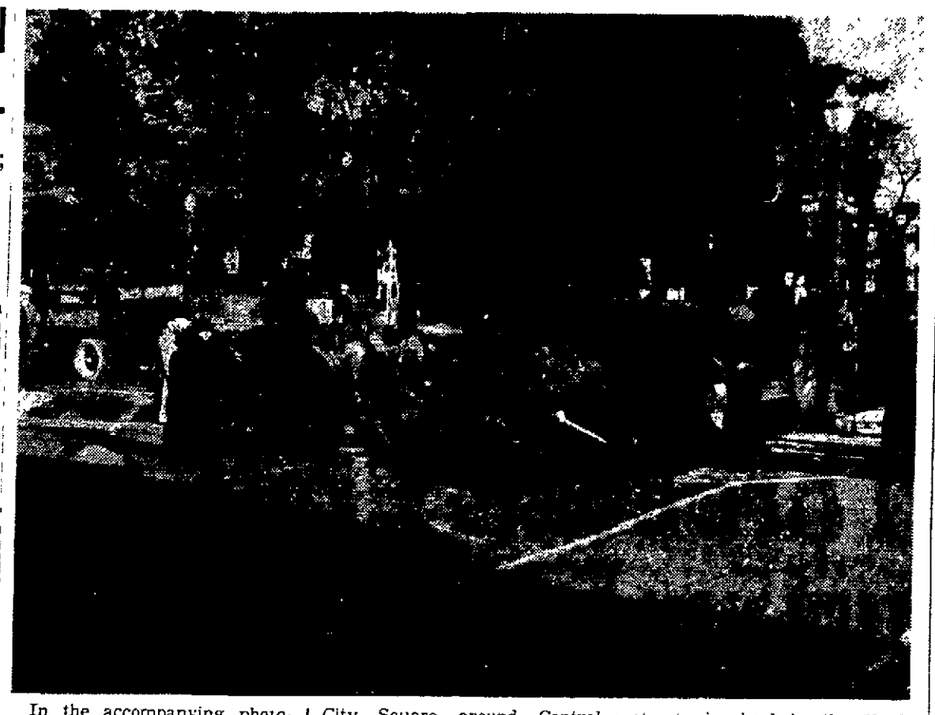
The communique gave no details of the shifting lines within the city, but the army newspaper Red Star said the Germans had occupied some favorable positions.

Volga river gunboats supported Red army infantrymen in a local attack which hurled back Rumanian riflemen, Red Star said.

Typical of the street fighting was an engagement for an area 30 yards by 250 yards which was declared to have changed hands four times before Russian troops, though hammered by Nazi dive-bombers, finally won it.

Craters in the asphalt became foxholes; broken telephone poles were used as barricades.

As City's Square Gets New 'Face'



In the accompanying photograph, workmen of the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company are spreading a new "face" on City Square around Central park. Motorists already praise the cushiony new surface of Park avenue east and other streets involved in the U. S. Route 42 reconstruction program.

RUSH CONCRETE WORK ON 30-N; CENTRAL PARK JOB PROGRESSES

Building of framework was being pushed today to permit the start of concrete pouring tomorrow on the new pavement on U. S. Route 30-N made necessary by the B. and O. and Erie railroad grade separations which had threatened to continue detour inconvenience through another winter.

Howard Herring, Cleveland contractor, yesterday placed some equipment into operation on the Route 30 project to enable the Lombardo Brothers Construction company to fulfill their contract after much of their equipment had been moved to other jobs. With fair weather, Herring anticipates that all fills can be made and the paving completed well before the deadline and the onset of winter cold.

Protests against the 90-day extension request filed by the Lombardo Brothers recently brought a flood of criticism from motorists resentful of unnecessary wear on rubber tires or gasoline consumption in face of drastic rationing regulations.

State highway department officials announced there were no reasons why the Lombardo firm could not complete the job on time, especially after Erie railroad engineers declared they could finish the railroad's part in a couple of days.

While the repaving of U. S. Route 42 definitely had been held up for several weeks by government freezing orders covering all bituminous materials, the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company today was laying the top coating of asphalt on city square around Central park. This project also is under supervision of the state highway department.

Completion of the Bartley avenue and Glen Beck lane paving projects will follow the city square work, company officials say. Equipment then will be moved to another city to complete a previously accepted contract before work is started on the resurfacing of Giessner avenue.

The registration deadline for Mansfield voters is next Monday night. Mansfielders were urged by election officials to register this week if possible to avoid a last-minute rush Monday.

ALLIES GO ON OFFENSIVE IN WAR IN PACIFIC

Aussies Gain in New Guinea Mountains, Smash Enemy Planes in Solomons.

vaders' progress by smashing vital supply lines.

The greatest blow to the Nipponese air forces during the activity commencing Sept. 25, was struck in the Solomons where 42 planes were shot down and three others damaged, the navy department said. Navy and marine corps fighters bombed four ships, setting a cruiser afire and probably sinking a transport.

Without loss of a single U. S. plane, the American forces bombed a Japanese cruiser and a seaplane tender, and shot down three seaplanes at Tonolei harbor on Sept. 25; destroyed six more enemy seaplanes, damaged a seventh, hit a cruiser and probably sank a transport near Shotland island on Sept. 26. The following day they blasted four bombers and five fighter planes of an attacking Japanese squadron over Guadalcanal.

Continuing their attacks yesterday, the American air forces successfully intercepted 25 Japanese bombers which were accompanied by 18 Zero fighters and were headed for marine installations on Guadalcanal. Navy and marine fighter planes destroyed 23 enemy bombers and one Zero and forced the others to jettison their bombs into the sea.

The marines meanwhile strengthened their hold on Guadalcanal by destroying several small enemy detachments still on the island.

About 6,000 miles northward, army airmen accompanied for the first time by Canadian planes, raided the Japanese footholds on the Aleutians. Seven enemy planes were destroyd, a transport left in flames, two submarines strafed and an estimated 150 Japanese killed or wounded in a low-level attack on Kiska.

After heavy army bombers raided enemy installations on the islands with unobserved results on Sept. 24, the navy announced yesterday, a strong force of army bombers and pursuit planes accompanied by Royal Canadian Air Force ships, attacked again the following day.

Direct bomb hits on one of two transports or cargo ships in the harbor set the vessel afire and it was beached. The attack pushed the total of Japanese ships sunk or damaged in the Aleutians to 33 since the enemy raid on Dutch Harbor, June 3.

The conferences of the top strategists of the Pacific fleet and the army airforces were disclosed in a terse navy announcement. While the navy did not reveal the nature of the discussions, military and naval circles noted that it was attended by a stepping up of activity on the Pacific fronts.

Those who met were Admiral C. W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet; Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, commander of the South Pacific area, and Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the army airforces.

Blast Jap Bases In Yunnan Province

CHUNGKING —(UP)— American bombers, protected by fighter planes for the second successive day blasted Japanese installations in the extreme southwest of Yunnan province yesterday and the results were "excellent," Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell reported today.

In two separate raids, Stilwell's communique said, American airmen attacked objectives at Wanting and Tengchung (Tungyueh) west of the Salween river.

All bombs struck the targets, the communique said, adding that no plane was lost.

Wanting and Tengchung were attacked Sunday, and without loss.

motorists and will open for business Wednesday at 8:30 a. m. Approximately 100 drivers were waiting for the doors to open both yesterday and today.

Drivers who operate their cars without licenses after midnight Wednesday are subject to arrest, Jack Berger, assistant secretary, pointed out.

Berger also added that drivers obtaining licenses after the deadline will not be subjected to the driver's test until April 1, providing they held a license during the year 1942.

Beginning Thursday at 8:30 a. m. the auto club will resume regular hours and licenses may be obtained daily from then until 5 p. m.

THREATEN FARM BILL FILIBUSTER

Senators Seek to Stall Vote on Measure to Control Farm Prices Today.

authority to stabilize prices, wages and salaries at Sept. 15 levels.

Less than 48 hours remained for congress to enact anti-inflation legislation. The president's "you-do-it-or-I-will" ultimatum expires Thursday, Oct. 1.

Senate leaders indicated they would give no further quarter to the farm bloc. They were prepared for a showdown on their own compromise proposal directing that farm labor costs be considered in the fixing of farm price ceilings, but not requiring a change in the present parity formula.

Thomas, although hinting at the possibility of a filibuster in the face of what now looks like a defeat for the farm bloc, denied that the bloc was responsible for the delay in senate passage of the bill. He said it had been ready to vote since last Wednesday.

Some quarters interpreted Thomas' threat to "talk indefinitely" as the farm bloc's new strategy. Others doubted, however, that it would want to bear the responsibility of delaying the legislation and thus precipitate an historic clash between congress and the chief executive. Mr Roosevelt has threatened to act by executive order if congress does not.

Thomas apparently did not speak for all of the farm bloc. Sen. Carl A. Hatch, D., N. M., another farm leader, said the bloc would seek to push the Thomas amendment to a vote today.

Administration forces were confident they had the votes to put their compromise on farm prices in the bill.

THINK 8 YEARS SCHOOL ENOUGH

Wayne Farmers Surrender, Jailed. Oppose High Schools.

WOOSTER —(UP)— Three Wayne county farmers, who objected to their children receiving more than an eighth grade education, were in jail today charged with refusing to send their children to school.

Ezra Chupp, Noah Swartzentruber and Andrew Hershberger, all members of a religious sect, appeared at the county jail yesterday and gave themselves up to authorities.

Affidavits were filed against the three men two weeks ago. Members of their religious sect oppose their children attending high schools.

THREE PERISH

Small Children Die In Fire In Ohio Village.

CALDWELL —(U.P.)— The three small children of Blaine Moore, 31, perished last night in a fire that swept their Summerfield home because this Noble county village has little water.

Because of its unusual altitude Caldwell has little water and efforts to extinguish the blaze, believed to have started when coals fell on a rug, failed. The children were Evelyn, 11 months; Betty, 3, and Donald Lee, 4.

Sheriff Clayton McKee said that all filling stations in the area emptied their gasoline trucks and hauled water to combat the flames.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

Sometimes I am glad I am not a drama critic (I guess the producers are happy about it, too) because I suffer from a peculiar type of schizophrenia which often permits me to enjoy a play even when I know it's bad. Last year's "The Land Is Bright" was one of those dramas for me: I knew what was wrong with it, all the time, but I enjoyed it the way I enjoy a Tarzan picture, and it would have hurt my conscience to sit at my ivory portable and list all its flaws without adding that I'd had a fine time at this miserable entertainment.

Kilgallen

In quite a different way, this week's "Vickie" belongs in that category for me. I was quite aware as I watched it that the construction was sloppy; no one had to tell me that the actors' entrances and exits were motivated by nothing more valid than the author's desire to get characters on and offstage; and I was inclined to agree with a friend of mine who moaned that such a travesty on American women at war was enough to give aid and comfort to Joe Goebbels. But even so, I laughed at it. My better judgment was saying, "Oh, dear, no!" but my funnybone was giggling.

Do you suppose any of the boys on the aisle ever have that trouble?

I wonder why the proper government agency doesn't enlist the services of our writers of light verse to aid the various scrap collections and home defense drives, on the theory that instructions in the form of a clever jingle stay in the mind far longer than those in a 20-page pamphlet. I'd recommend Ogden Nash, Dorothy Parker and Phyllis McGinley to compose bright sayings and snappy slogans for Uncle Sam.

. . . Have you noticed that knitting bags are now occupying seats on the subways?

One of the miracles of this gasless era is the way the Glen Island Casino continues to pack in the youngsters, although it is located in a region made somewhat inaccessible since rationing began. But night after night, come weal, come woe, the kids can be found hopping and twirling to Hal McIntyre's music up there, and their methods of conveyance are a triumph of man over the obstacles of civilization.

Those sleek cars borrowed from the pater have been replaced by occasional battered station wagons packed with any number from 10 to 16 of the saddle-shoe set; an array of bicycles is on display in the driveways and here and there couples bend, unbuckling roller skates before getting down to the serious business of cutting those rugs.

It's evident that the zoot-suit set is not to be kept from its solid jive by a little thing like lack of transportation.

I am sorry to note that the War Bond drive has failed to reach its goal. It was a high goal, to be sure, but ridiculously low when you think what you would be prepared to pay for your freedom if the Nazis were on your doorstep, ready to inflict upon you the kind of slavery they would like to inflict upon everyone who thinks the way you do.

Hitler is in Berlin at the moment, and Tojo is in Tokyo, but theoretically they are both riding into New York harbor with their fleets, invading our shores, planting the swastika and the symbol of the rising sun in our earth. If that were happening you would not be sitting wondering whether to buy a war bond or a new coat; you would be down by the river with a gun or a stick or a lead pipe or whatever you had at hand, and it would be too late for war bonds or anything that money can buy.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Another side of Hollywood:

Marion Burrud is a general secretary in the RKO stenographic department. One day she may be secretary or assistant secretary to a top executive, next day she may be relief secretary to some producer like, at this writing, Val Lewton. Marion has more fun when it's a producer like Lewton. Lewton's been doing "The Cat People" and having fun with it. Actors come and go past Marion's desk. She 'phones them at their homes, wakes them up sometimes. They call her by her first name.

Coons

Another time she may be secretary to a pair of song writers like Gordon and Revel. That's interesting, too, only—"you must like music very much!" she says.

Marion is 25, good-looking, wears glasses when she works and has never thought of being an actress. At the age of nine, when she came to Los Angeles from Mason City, Ia., she was already a movie fan but that wasn't why the family came. Grandmother's health moved them. She attended school in Hollywood, then a commercial college. As an ardent movie fan, she took the course aimed at studio employment and on completing it got a job promptly—at RKO. That was in 1934. She worked there, at United Artists, back to RKO, took time out for marriage and rearing her small son, now nearly five. Divorced recently, she returned to her job.

She goes to movies nearly every night, is not crazy about stars in person, although Cary Grant makes her catch her breath.

* * *

Some of her assignments are especially interesting, she says. Val Lewton, making "The Cat People," sent her to the Los Angeles library to look up certain horror books and copy data from them, also to a closed museum to sketch and make notes on a statue of an ancient Balkan knight who had a cat impaled on his lance. Working on a picture usually makes her want to see it. She doesn't like horror pictures, though, and is going to this one purely to get that "I contributed" feeling.

As a member of Screen Office Employees Guild, Marion earns 84 cents an hour, time and a half for overtime, has a five-day week.

Calls for Compulsory War Work Law

ASKS MINERS TO LENGTHEN WEEK, AID WAR EFFORT

Ickes Warns Union Fuel Will Play Vital Part In Winning War.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Warning that "we shall lose this war if we don't produce enough coal," Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes today asked the nation's mine operators and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers union to increase the work hours in the mines "beyond the present 35-hour week limitatoin."

Ickes made his statement at a conference of miners and operators, and emphasized that he was going to leave the responsibility of increasing the present seven-hour day, five-day week to the "accredited representatives of mine operators and of labor."

"I shall leave it to you to work out a satisfactory solution," Ickes told the joint conference, urging speedy action.

However, it was doubtful that there would be any action for two or three weeks. Simultaneously with the meeting, the United Mine Workers revealed that it had sent memoranda to all members of the international executive committee, in which the UMW said that a full report on the question of increasethe hours of labor would be made at its 37th annual convention which opens in Cincinnati, O., next Tuesday. The convention will last eight days and the memorandum made it clear that there will be no decision without convention authorization.

At the same time, it was disclosed that the United Mine Workers are eying the movement to increase the work week with suspicion. The UMW maintains that there are already adequate stocks above ground.

In its journal just off the press today the UMW said:

"It looks like the greedy boys in the coal industry have been whispering in some one's ears in Washington and painting a picture designed to aid their individual companies."

However, the Journal said that if the country needs coal it will get it.

CHANGE PLANS

Winwood Avenue Residents Seek 60-Foot Drive.

Residents of Winwood drive, farthest south thoroughfare in the city running westward off South Main street, now are petitioning council to approve 60-foot slag or gravel pavement for the drive, together with curbs, tile storm war drainage and city water lines.

According to the petition filed with City Clerk Robert Black today R. E. Painter and other owners of property on the south side of the street will dedicate a 30-foot strip of land along their properties to provide the wider roadway.

At a conference of Winwood property owners with representatives of City Engineer W. C. Statler's office, it was explained that no homes will be built on the south side of the drive.

Under the petition the 13 signers who own property on the north side of the street set up that the entire cost of the project can be, by their agreement, assessed against their properties.

Earlier in the month the Winwood residents had petitioned for the 30-foot driveway.

STILL DROPPING

Sales Tax Receipts Are Down $12,768 For Period.

The downward trend in sales tax receipts which started in Richland county early this year has been slackened a little, but it continued through the four-week period ending Sept. 12, resulting in a $12,768 loss for the period, the state treasurer's report showed today.

Although there was a statewide drop for the month, the Richland county decline was more than 20 per cent, greater than the state average.

Collections in the county amounted to $38,808 as compared with $51,576 in the corresponding four weeks last year.

Tax collected on food and clothing showed an increase over last year, but marked declines were reported in the collections on furniture, building materials, and automobile sales.

After receiving a second lieutenant's bars on completion of his officer's training course at Camp Lee, Va., he was assigned to the 388th quartermaster's battalion at Charleston, S. "Yoo hoo, Doris, your ration book," reads the caption.

It's Time To Lose Our Smugness On War, Says General

ST. LOUIS, Mo. —(U.P.)— Asserting that "we've lost everything except a smug sense of complacency and that is the one thing we've got to lose," Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, commanding general of the services of supply went on record today with one of the most caustic war speeches yet made by a high military oficial.

Speaking last night before the grand lodge of Missouri Masons, Somervell said the United Nations have "taken a terrific shellacking all around the globe" and that it is time that "we begin to be realistic."

"The Japanese and Nazis hate us and it is high time Americans start throwing some of that hate back in their faces," he said. "You can't kill a man you don't hate and fear and our number one job now is to kill Nazis and Japs.

OHIO SOLDIERS TO HAVE VOTE

Sweeney Takes Matter of Postcards Into His Own Hands.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Ohio's soldier boys may get to vote for state and local officials in the Nov. 3 election after all, for Secretary of State John E. Sweeney has ruled that postcard requests for "war ballots" will be considered equivalent to registration.

"Under that ruling, it will be possible to send the complete state and local ballot, and the necessity for a special ballot listing only congressional candidates, as described in the federal law, will be eliminated," Sweeney said yesterday.

Sweneey admitted that his position was not in accord with advice given him by Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert, but he "believed it completed with the intent of the state law."

M'NUTT TELLS CONGRESS OF 3 KEY PROBLEMS

Says Persuasion Alone Won't Get Workers Into Jobs Aiding Nation Most.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A national service act, for compulsory assignment of workers to jobs where they are most needed, emerged today as the probable administration answer to the multiplying manpower problems of fighting a war on three fronts—the firing, food and factory lines.

Paul V. McNutt, war manpower chief, told the house agriculture committee which is inquiring into farm labor scarcities that an administration-sponsored bill for allocating labor probably would be submitted to congress soon.

While remaining silent on the extent of powers such legislation would embrace, he told newspapermen he disliked the terms "labor draft" and "labor conscription."

Testifying before the committee yesterday, he said:

"Persuasion is not enough and there's not sufficient patrotic urge. I hope in the very near future that certain recommendations will be made. It's not an easy task. We've never had such legislation. Certain constitutional questions are involved. . . . The job ahead is a question of putting every man and woman in the place where they could contribute most to a speedy victory."

He stressed that England passed such an act virtually at the outset of the war, and he expressed the opinion that compulsion would have to be used with very few persons in this country, that the mere existence of the law would go a long way toward correcting conditions.

Turning directly to the farm labor problem, McNutt told the agriculture group that one way to keep workers on the farm was to increase their wages, so as to diminish the lure of industrial pay.

In answer to a question from a committee member, whether this would bring about higher farm prices, he said. "It would seem to follow, logically." Later he told newspapermen he did not intend his statement to be construed as having any relation to the current farm bloc fight for higher prices in the anti-inflation bill.

McNutt told the committee that "food requirements will not permit a curtailment of farm output."

He expressed confidence that this year's crops would be harvested without serious difficulty, although "minor" crop losess had occurred.

No Farm Products Without Labor

MORE INFORMATION such as that contained in an article in Sunday's News-Journal, written by George B. Ganyard, Richland county agricultural agent, would be beneficial to urban readers who are seriously interested in "farm problems" and who are also confused by conflicting views on parity prices.

In this article Mr. Ganyard discussed changes in farming from earlier days to the present and explained that modern farming is "a process of applying labor, capital and management to land."

Need for an equitable return on the investment of capital, labor and management was stated as the purpose of the parity principle, and the fairness of contention that labor costs must be included in determining the selling price of farm products is so obvious as to cause wonderment that there is lack of complete agreement on this subject.

Through co-operative marketing arrangements, and by means of various organizations, farmers have been able to express themselves with considerable force, but not to the extent of gaining recognition that farm labor is comparable to industrial labor, in the matter of wages and hours, or that capable farm management justifies compensation equivalent to that paid for equally exacting urban employment.

The much ridiculed effort of John L. Lewis to organize milk producers as an adjunct to his miners' union was fortunately given scant attention, but it was at least the hazy suggestion of an idea that competent farm workers should no longer be regarded as undeserving of more than the barest subsistence wage, or that farm operators are entitled to no more than a precarious living in exchange for capital investment, hard work and long hours.

When "stabilization" of wages is being considered, reasonable compensation for farm work, as compared with industrial wages, cannot be honestly disregarded.

To Enforce 35-Mile Speed Limit

SOME FOLKS who do not read, listen or think will still be driving at more than 35 miles an hour Thursday and thereafter—until they are caught and penalized for what, on and after October 1, will not only be an offense against the law but will also be regarded as detrimental to the national war effort.

In the main, it may be assumed, motorists will voluntarily comply with the urgent request that 35 miles an hour shall be maximum speed, and that there be no unnecessary driving between now and the latter part of November when gasoline rationing is announced to become effective.

The 35-mile limit has long been in effect on city streets that are a part of state and federal highways, with 25 miles an hour the legal limit on other streets, and it is now announced by Traffic Commissioner Boals that there will be stricter enforcement of these limits in Mansfield.

Wednesday, it may also be noted, is the final day for renewal of drivers' licenses, so that Thursday will bring not only the requirement to hold speed within 35 miles an hour but also to have a new license in readiness to show when requested.

How Cardinals Win Pennants

TRIUMPH of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League shows the value of what is known as the "chain store system." Though the New York Yankees in the American League had already proved this, the fact had been obscured by their coming from New York. It seemed natural that the metropolis should have the richest owners and therefore the best team. This explanation ignored the failure, in recent years, of the New York Giants.

Other teams, notably the Chicago Cubs, have had heavy pocket-books back of them, yet have not approached the record of either the Cardinals or Yankees. In the last ten years the Yankees have won six pennants, twice finished second, and once, by a bare margin, third. The Cardinals have won five pennants, finished second twice and third three times, in the last 16 years. No other club can match this.

The chain store system is what its name indicates. The major league team owns a series of minor league clubs, at least one for every class of professional ball. This means several places whence players can be drawn, and several clubs of varying degrees of skill with which to place a promising athlete for training. They thus have a constant supply of promising material.

Other clubs, lacking these facilities, may be strong one year, weak for some years following. Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, pennant-winners in 1931, had by 1935 gone to pieces so badly that they finished last, and have not been far from there any year since. This was because their supply of new stars depended on chance.

Garbled Reports Trap Bookies

ODD how differently things are looked at by officials in different cities. In New York City, for instance, the police went to great lengths a couple of days ago to run down race bookie joints, even sending out garbled racing results to trap bookies who phoned in to complain.

Nine bookies were raided and closed. Mayor LaGuardia offered the services of the city's legal staff to persons who desired to sue for money lost to the bookies.

No such trouble would be encountered in Mansfield, as the police would know just where to go if it is sometime decided to enforce the law against operating a "bookie" here.

James Petrillo, boss of the musicians' union, is defended by his attorney as "a patriot"—which seems to give that word an entirely unexpected meaning.

PAUL REVERE RIDES AGAIN

Not Protected Against Inflation

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — One of the strangest political angles to the present temper of congress is that the most timid group of men in the country, frightened of labor, frightened of the farmer, frightened of every tiny minority that organizes and shouts at it, has no apparent concern about the largest group of all—the holders of war bonds and stamps.

It does not require an investigation to show that more people have bought war bonds and stamps than the total of any one single group—more than all union members, for example, more than all farmers, etc. This is obviously so because nearly everybody has bought some.

The point here applies to the battle now on to control inflation. Senators and representatives are voting, many of them, against this or that feature of the anti-inflation bill. A very large number—eleven out of twelve on one committee the other day—are voting against any brake on the rise of farm prices. Many others are voting against any restriction on wage increases.

It is easy to see that if ANY loopholes are left in the price control program — if ANY adjustments, so called, are to be permitted, inevitably the value of the dollar is reduced. If the loopholes lead to a general rise in prices, working in a vicious circle, then the future of the dollar is very sad indeed.

SO WHAT becomes of the war bonds and stamps which the vast majority of our people are patriotically buying—the "best investment in the world?" The answer is that the buyers will get the proper number of dollars—four in ten years for every three they put up now—but what will the dollars be worth?

Any senator or representative who votes to cripple the anti-inflation bill—and that is what the amendments are doing—is voting to undermine the value of these government securities which a large majority of his own constituents are buying and have bought.

The administration is not stressing this argument. It has not mentioned the value of these war bonds in connection with the inflation issue. That would be poor sales talk indeed. But the fact remains that it is true.

THE really wicked feature of this lack of protection in the anti-inflation legislation for our bond buying citizens is perhaps the real answer to why congressmen are not afraid of the bond buying group—only a few smart people in every country that has gone through inflation have been able to circumvent it. The people who are least able to protect themselves by shrewd investment—the people whose chief investment may be in these bonds—are the ones who will suffer unless the administration is able to curb inflation.

So, these people, whose savings are being endangered by reckless class appeal votes of their senators and representatives, do not realize the danger sufficiently to threaten their congressmen. Labor leaders and farm organization leaders DO threaten.

Of course, buying bonds is itself a curb on inflation. It checks the spending which forces inflation. But it is NOT enough to prevent the dollar from declining in value.

Meet America!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

REMEMBER the Fourth of July parade when you were a kid? And how your young spine used to tingle when the hometown band went marching by, playing the national anthem? Maybe it's been years since you felt a thrill like that—particularly if you've gone through two or three wars since. All this flag-waving, all these patriotic speeches—after a while they leave you a little cold. Of course, you love your country. You'd swat anyone who said you didn't. But, oh well—

That's the way I felt when they asked me to see that preview of "Yankee Doodle Dandy." "Just another musical comedy," says I to myself. "Just a bigger bunch of glamor gals and theme songs. What's the use?" Yet I went. And I'll always be a greater and more grateful American because I did.

Perhaps you already know the plot—the story of a man whose name long since became a household tradition—George M. Cohan, the Irish-American imp whose courage and impertinence plus twinkling toes and singing throat, made him master of Broadway. And all-time interpreter of the American heart and hope.

You'll be seeing George Cohan when this film come to town, seeing the incredible fidelity of his interpretation by James Cagney. And if Jimmy never does a film again, this alone will make him immortal. You'll be seeing the genius of two great men; you'll be hearing the songs that swept America for three generations. "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and then that greatest of war songs that sent our boys across the ocean and over the top in the first World war shouting "Over There."

Yes, you'll be seeing all this and many another detail of a gloriously inspired, gay, young heart that has never grown old and that faced failure as well as success with gallant impudence. But you'll also see something more. You'll see your own life reflected as it has never been before . . . your own hopes and heartbreaks, triumphs and flops that have not only filled your years but have helped to build America.

"The whole darn country squeezed into one pair of pants." That was and is the secret of George M. Cohan's genius, and of James Cagney's deeply moving interpretation. And never have we needed that story as we need it today, particularly we who must serve wordless and waiting in the back-line trenches. Not for us the bright lights of Broadway. Not for us the murderous excitement of the battlefield. But there weren't only bright lights for George Cohan either. And there was many a dark hour without fireworks.

A little man sitting in a dingy theater alcove, picking out the rhythm of "Over There" . . . a hungry youngster, going from door to door, seeking to sell his lyrics, being kicked out; a man, disgraced unfairly, watching his friends depart across forbidden ways, seeing suddenly the sign of vindication. Then dancing there in the night, without audience or applause, alone in the spotlight of his own courage TO THE TEMPO OF THE DREAM THAT SOARED LIKE A ROCKET IN HIS HEART.

That's Warner Bros.' new triumph, "Yankee Doodle Dandy." That's the finest tonic for what ails us all that has come to the screen in many and many a day. Go to see it. Go to live it!

Policemen Can't Replace Parents.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the FBI, adds his personal warning about a situation that threatens to get worse before it gets better. Another era of post-war lawlessness is in the making, he believes, unless juvenile delinquency is curbed where it starts — in the home.

Policemen, even if there were enough of them, couldn't replace parents as child trainers. Even with the most advanced crime prevention plans, the police department continues to be concerned primarily with what happens when there has been a mistake in the child's training at home.

This is not to suggest that parents must be held responsible for everything that may happen to their children, but only that anything which relaxes a child's proper discipline in the home circle will be reflected in national crime statistics eventually.—Canton repository.

Interpreting the War News

Conquest of China Continues as Essential Objective of Japanese

—By GLENN BABB

SPECULATION on Japan's next move begins to eliminate some of the possibilities. The British obviously feel a growing confidence that India can be removed from the list and that Australia is not in immediate danger. General Sir Archibald Wavell, who ought to know something about Japanese conquest schedules by now, having directed the losing fight for Malaya and the Dutch East Indies last winter, puts it picturesquely:

"As to the Japanese, he's got his hands full. He's like a boa constrictor which has swallowed a big goat. He needs time to digest it. Japan is not likely to take on a job like the invasion of Australia or India."

The most indigestible part of Japan's goat continues to be, as for five years past, China. Last spring, after the Japanese in a few weeks had seized the oriental possessions of the United States, Britain and the Netherlands, there was a worldwide guessing contest as to territory Japan would try next to add to her expanding empire.

Then, as in recent weeks, it generally was assumed that the Japanese would try for some distant, glittering prize—India, Australia or Siberia. Then, as recently, little attention was paid to the likelihood that the next major effort of the Japanese army would be against China. But so it turned out to be, for since the occupation of Burma the only large scale operations of the Mikado's land forces have been in China's East-Central provinces of Chekiang and Kiangsi.

THANKS to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's still ill-equipped infantry divisions and the dashing aid lent by the small United States air forces in China, those operations failed. The Japanese are just about back to the bases from which they started last May.

That has been the Japanese army's big show of the last six months. The Coral sea, Midway, the Aleutians and the Solomons were primarily naval operations. And the Japanese army cannot be expected to accept the Kiangsi-Chekiang defeat without an early effort to wipe out the stain. Its prestige at home as well as the empire's prestige in the Asiatic world—the "co-prosperity sphere"—calls for action.

This might, of course, take the form of a smash at Russia's Siberia. But the logic of Japan's immediate situation points more strongly to a new China campaign.

THE FORAYS of General Stilwell's bombers and fighters against the Japanese who entered southwestern China from Burma last spring and also against Hanoi, in French Indo-China, through which troops and supplies flow in a steady stream, probably are not without significance. Japanese divisions which were withdrawn from the Chekiang-Kiangsi theater have been moved, both Japanese and Chinese say, to another zone of operations, probably China's none too well defended southern and southwestern borders.

At any rate Japan's primary purpose in which she calls the greater east Asia war, to establish her rule over all the territory between the sea of Japan and the Indian ocean, is far from accomplishment as long as Chiang Kai-Shek's Free China remains in being. That is the very core of the whole adventure in international brigandage; it all fails unless China is conquered.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

(Second in a Series)

WASHINGTON — There probably isn't a person who will read these lines who doesn't know of one or more hardship cases as a result of the man of the house being off to the war but never has any nation in any major struggle tried so hard to avoid them.

In the first place, Selective Service has delayed (and still is delaying) the induction of men with families and dependents. Some have already been called; others will be called soon. But it is doubtful if any nation has ever put an army of more than 4,000,000 men in training in ten months of total war and held injustices to the family to such a minimum.

In the second place, congress, through the Servicemen's Dependents Allowance Act and other measures, has taken considerable precautions to see that the hardship cases are kept from actual want.

FOR the purposes of the act, dependents are divided into Class A, a wife and child or children; Class B, parents, brothers, sisters and grandchildren who are all or in part dependent upon the enlisted man. Every man in the service in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades (a new selectee is normally rated seventh grade) has to contribute $22 allotment from his monthly pay to Class A dependents. Whether he does so to Class B dependents is voluntary. In the case of contributions to dependents in both classes, the allotment may amount to $27.

To this the government adds an allowance of varying amounts determined by the degree of dependency, so that monthly checks from the government varying from $27 for a partially dependent brother, sister or grandchild, to more than $100 in some instances, keep the soldier's family from dire want.

* * *

IN ADDITION, widows, children and parents of men killed in World War II or in extra-hazardous service before we entered the war, may apply for and receive pensions ranging from $20 to $133.

Dependents of a man who dies in service also receive six months' pay of his rank.

There are provisions for burial allowances and for interment in Arlington National Cemetery. Wives of veterans buried in Arlington may be interred in the same grave.

Thus, from induction of a serviceman to a period beyond his discharge or years beyond his death, the government seeks to give his family some economic protection.

Man About Manhattan

Strong Men Faint

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — That Broadway stage hit of yesteryear, "The Bat," always will be memorable to me because of a friend of mine—the show's press agent—fainted during the opening night's show. I am reminded of it because the other night, at the new Emlyn Williams play, "The Morning Star," another friend of mine—a case-hardened newspaper reporter, one of the best in town—also fainted. It's a funny thing. He has worked on scores of murder cases, the Hauptmann for one, and has run across all sorts of bloody and disagreeable sights. All through the new play, which is about a British family living amid a shower of bombs, he felt himself slipping. What finally knocked him over was the sight of the hero with his stained, bandaged hands—stained with nothing more grisly than red ink.

WYNN MURRAY, The Scranton, Pa., comedienne who began her Broadway career as the fat girl in "Babes In Arms," was pushing the scales up to 250 pounds when she entered "Sons O'Fun," as the chief femme lead with Olsen and Johnson. Today, just about a year later, she weighs only 125 pounds. Why- "My weight gave me an inferiority complex. I was unhappy. When I get down to 115 I'll call a halt."

But isn't that dangerous, losing all that weight? Her doctor, Dr. H. C. Cagney, brother of Jimmy Cagney, the actor, doesn't think so. . . . Wynn is in her very early twenties.

DUDLEY LESLIE, a former drama critic in London and well known to Broadway has gone to war, and in a spare moment he pens this little note from an unnamed point far, far on the other side of the world:

"Of course New York to us here is something between Nirvana and Brighton on a holiday. It was always a fascinating city, but oh, the things you take for granted in peacetime. Now, just to walk down Broadway, without speaking a word, would be such a thrill that we probably would be arrested for vagrancy . . . I've been six months in this damned dump and I can't find anything good to say about it. My best wishes go out to you, you dweller in a sparkling, bugless, witty, intelligent city."

A Farmer's Diary

Hats Off!

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

SHE was a thin, not very tall woman, past middle-age. I saw her first standing along the street in our town, on a morning when a contingent of draftees was leaving for army service.

Bands were playing, flags waved. Boy Scouts darted about in uniform—wives and sweethearts of many lads were there, some chatting as though it were a gala occasion, others thoughtful and confused. Close within a recess of two brick walls, I noticed two people—this thin little woman, and a tall blond youth of 20. Occasionally he placed his hand upon her bent shoulder, and then she looked up at him and smiled—a bright, brave smile. Neither of them heard the band which blared away, covering up all attempts at conversation with a helpful, incessant strain of patriotic zeal.

"Sell my colt and my car next week and buy bonds with the money," he said to her. "I didn't want to see 'em go. I'll send you all I can save from out o' my pay—and when I come back, I'll take that ag course and live with you there on the farm—Ann and I." He blushed a little, and her face beamed.

"She—didn't want to come?"

"No—nobody would understand I was there last night . . ."

Just then the buses came and without ceremony, a soldier at attention called "all aboard." The young soldier boys with their friends surged toward the waiting transports.

The slender quiet woman did not leave the niche in the wall. She gave her son a sweet and calm farewell, and he kissed her proudly. There were no tears. When he was seated in the bus, he looked and waved—and she waved back, eagerly, until his bus moved off.

THAT same day, in the afternoon, I saw her on her farmhouse porch, and I stopped. She greeted me with a sad smile, and her eyes were red. All about her were the toys her boy had used—a broken wagon, a small battered tin sand pail, a little old shoe, and a picture of a six-year-old with a football proudly held beneath his arm.

"You won't understand," she said, "but it seems to help, today—the day he went away—to have these things where I can see them and remember all his life over again." And then she sobbed a little, and when she had dried her eyes, went on . . . "I'm glad he went away in these beautiful autumn days . . . I'm so proud of him! Tomorrow I won't cry any more—but today is his—and I want to be myself for a while today, and feast my memory, alone on him. That we've always been so close together, I hope I'll be with him many times, when the goin's rough."
